FIRST IMPRESSIONS OF EUROPE.

NUMBER SEVENTY-SEVEN—(BY N. P. WILLIS.)

Departure from Vienna—the eil-wagon—motley quality of the passengers—thunder storm in the mountains of Styria—short beds of the Germans—Grotto of Adelsburg—curious ball room in the cavern.

I left Vienna at daylight in a diligence nearly as capacious as a steamboat—inaptly called the eil-wagon. A Friuli count with a pair of cavalry mustaches, his wife, a pretty Viennese of eighteen, scarce married a year, two fashionable-looking young Russians, an Austrian midshipman, a fat Gratz lawyer, a trader from the Danube, and a young Bavarian student, going to seek his fortune in Egypt, were my companions The social habits of continental travellers had given me thus much information by the end of the first post.

We drove on with German regularity, three days and three nights, eating four meals a day, (and very good ones,) and improving hourly in our acquaintance. The Russians spoke all our languages. The Friulese and the Bavarian spoke everything but English, and the lady, the trader, and the Gratz avocat were confined to their vernacular. It was a pretty idea of Babel when the conversation became general.

We were coursing the bank of a river, in one of the romantic passes of the mountains of Styria, with a dark thunder storm gathering on the summit of a crag overhanging us. I was pointing out to one of my companions a noble ruin of a castle seated very loftily on the edge of one of the precipices, when a streak of the most vivid lightning shot straight upon the northernmost turret, and the moment after several large masses rolled slowly down the mountain-side. It was so like the scenery in a play, that I looked at my companion with half a doubt that it was some optical delusion. It reminded me of some of Martin's engravings. The sublime is so well imitated in our day that one is less surprised than he would suppose when nature produces the reality.

The night was very beautiful when we reached the summit of the mountain above Trieste. The new moon silvered the little curved bay below like a polished shield, and right in the path of its beams lay the two frigates like a painting. I must confess that the comfortable cot swinging in the ward-room of the "United States" was the prominent thought in my mind as I gazed upon the scene. The fatigue of three days' and nights' hard driving had dimmed my eye for the picturesque. Leaving my companions to the short beds* and narrow coverlets of a German hotel, I jumped into the first boat at the pier, and in a few minutes was alongside the ship. How musical is the hail of a sentry in one's native tongue, after a short habituation to the jargon of foreign languages! "Boat ahoy!" It made my heart leap. The officers had just returned from Venice, some over land by the Friuli, and some by the steamer through the gulf, and were sitting round the table laughing with professional merriment over their various adventures. It was getting back to country and friends and home.

I accompanied the commodore's family yesterday in a visit to the Grotto of Adelsburg. It is about thirty miles back into the Friuli mountains, near the province of Cariola. We arrived at the nearest tavern at three in the afternoon, and subscribing our names upon the magistrate's books, took four guides and the requisite number of torches, and started on foot. A half hour's walk brought us to a large, rushing stream, which, after turning a mill, disappeared with violence into the mouth of a broad cavern, sunk in the base of a mountain. An iron gate opened on the nearest side, and lighting our torches, we received an addition of half a dozen men to our party of guides, and entered. We descended for ten or fifteen minutes, through a capacious gallery of rock, up to the ankles in mud, and feeling continually the drippings exuding from the roof, till, by the echoing murmurs of dashing water, we found ourselves approaching the bed of a subterraneous river. We soon emerged in a vast cavern, whose height, though we had twenty torches, was lost in the darkness. The river rushed dimly below us, at the depth of perhaps fifty feet, partially illuminated by a row of lamps, hung on a slight wooden bridge by which we were to cross to the opposite side.

We descended by a long flight of artificial stairs, and stood upon the bridge. The wildness of the scene is indescribable. A lamp or two glimmered faintly from the lofty parapet from which we had descended, the depth and breadth of the surrounding cave could only be measured by the distance of the echoes of the waters, and beneath us leaped and foamed a dark river, which sprang from its invisible channel, danced a moment in the faint light of our lamps, and was lost again instantly in darkness. It brought with it, from the green fields through which it had come, a current of soft warm air, peculiarly delightful, after the chilliness of the other parts of the cavern; there was a smell of new-mown hay in it which seemed lost upon the tartarean blackness around.

Our guides led on, and we mounted a long staircase on the opposite side of the bridge. At the head of it stood a kind of monument, engraved with the name of the emperor of Austria, by whose munificence the staircases had been cut and the conveniences for strangers provided. We turned hence to the right, and entered a long succession of natural corridors, roofed with stalactites, with a floor of rock and mud, and so even and wide that the lady under my protection had seldom occasion to leave my arm. In the narrowest part of it, the stalactites formed a sort of reversed grove, with the roots in the roof. They were of a snowy white, and sparkled brilliantly in the light of the torches. One or two had reached the floor, and formed slender and beautiful sparry columns, upon which the names of hundreds of visitors were written in pencil.

The spars grew white as we proceeded, and we were constantly emerging into halls of the size of handsome drawing-rooms, whose glittering roofs, and sides lined with fantastic columns, seemed like the brilliant frost-work of a chrystalized cavern of ice. Some of the accidental formations of the stalagmites were very curious. One large area was filled with them, of the height of small plants. It was called by the guides the "English Garden." At the head of another saloon, stood a throne, with a stalactite canopy above it, so like the work of art that it seemed as if the sculptor had but left the finishing undone.

We returned part of the way we had come, and took another branch of the grotto, a little more on the descent. A sign above informed us that it was the "road to infernal regions." We walked on an hour at a quick pace, stopping here and there to observe the oddity of the formations. In one place, the stalactites had enclosed a room, leaving only small openings between the columns, precisely like the grating of a prison. In another, the ceiling lifted out of the reach of torch-light, and far above us we heard the deep-toned beat as upon a muffled bell. It was a thin circular sheet of spar, called "the bell," to which one of the guides had mounted, striking upon it with a billet of wood.

We came after a while to a deeper descent, which opened into a magnificent and spacious hall. It is called the "ball room," and used as such once a year, on the occasion of a certain Illyrian festa. The floor has been cleared of stalagmites, the roof and sides are ornamented beyond all art with glittering spars, a natural gallery with a balustrade of stalactites contains the orchestra, and side-rooms are all around where supper might be laid, and dressing-rooms offered in the style of a palace. I can imagine nothing more magnificent than such a scene. A literal description of it, even would read like a fairy tale.

A little farther on, we came to a perfect representation of a waterfall. The impregnated water had fallen on a declivity, and with a slightly ferruginous tinge of yellow, poured over in the most natural resemblance to a cascade after a rain. We proceeded for ten or fifteen minutes, and found a small room like a chapel, with a pulpit, in which stood one of the guides, who gave us as we stood beneath, an Illyrian exhortation. There was a sounding-board above, and I have seen pulpits in old Gothic churches, that seemed at a first glance, to have had less method in their architecture. The last thing we reached, was the most beautiful. From the cornice of a long gallery, hung a thin, translucent sheet of spar, in the graceful and waving folds of a curtain; with a lamp behind, the hand could be seen through any part of it. It was perhaps twenty [illegible] down from the roof of the cavern. The most singular part of it was the fringe. A ferruginous stain ran through it from one end to the other, with the exactness of a drawn line, and thence to the curving edge a most delicate rose-tint faded gradually down like the last flush of sunset through a silken curtain. Had it been a work of art, done in alabaster, and stained with the pencil, it would have been thought admirable.

The guide wished us to proceed, but our feet were wet, and the air of the cavern was too chill. We were at least four miles, they told us, from the entrance, having walked briskly for upwards of two hours. The grotto is said to extend ten miles under the mountains and has never been thoroughly explored.—Parties have started with provisions, and passed forty-eight hours in it, without finding the extremity. It seems to me that any city I ever saw might be concealed in its caverns. I have often tried to conceive of the grottos of Anti-Paros, and the celebrated caverns of our own country, but I received here an entirely new idea of the possibility of space under ground. There is no conceiving it unseen. The river emerges on the other side of the mountain, seven or eight miles from its first entrance.

We supped and slept at the little albergo of the village, and returned the next day to an early dinner.

*A German bed is never over five feet in length, and proportionately narrow. The sheets, blankets and coverlets are cut exactly to the size of the bed's surface, so that there is no tucking up. The bed-clothes seem made for cradles. It is easy to imagine how a tall person sleeps in them.

THE MORNING POST.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 21, 1834.

STENOGRAPHIC GLIMPSES OF CONGRESS.

No. XXXIX.

Washington, Jan. 15, 1834.—I make it my first duty to correct errors, though it may be my next fault to fall into them. In my Glimpses of the glorious EIGHTH, I mentioned the flower of the "Alma tree," as Miss Woodbury—on the authority of a gentleman who was wise in his own conceit, and wise too, "above what is written;" it was Miss Walton, the flower of Florida, the reigning belle of Washington, the ruling divinity of the season! I find, and though I have very little ambition to be known, I have still less, to be ignorant—and less still, to fall into errors.

"Not to know her, argues myself unknown"—

Shall I describe the nymph, since I have mistaken her name? She is of the stature of Shakspeare's Rosalind; of fine figure—and a face beaming with smiles, fascination, and intelligence. Though in her blooming teens, she is not the "purple," but the "wan blossom" of the Alma tree. She has a beautiful mouth—fine teeth—and brilliant, but half-eclipsed orbs, like Pauline Napoleon's—over

——Young Mirzala's blue eyes
The sleeping lid, like snow on violets lies.

Enough for once, of the young flower of Florida.

I made a call on the President this morning, and found him in fine health and spirits, surrounded by strangers—but friends—from all sections of the country. He inquired of them in his peculiar characteristic manner, whether they had witnessed the distress of which such glowing portraits had been drawn in the Senate and House? And being answered by several gentlemen in the negative, replied, he thought so—and presumed the subjects could not find time to give a sitting, any more than he could—alluding to the request of Mr Peale, who had just been soliciting him to sit for his portrait—and to whom he remarked, he could only find time to sit for his duties.

I took an opportunity to make a hasty call at the Department of State, to see the curiosities I saw so many, and had so slight a glimpse at them, that I should do them injustice by attempting to introduce them in detail to the public from so hasty an acquaintance. The Turkish Treaty occupies the most conspicuous place—and Commodore Porter deserves no little credit, for understanding and daring to sign such imposing hieroglyphics. I saw the famous diamond snuff box, presented by the Autocrat Alexander to the Democrat, Levitt Harris—a splendid and sparkling affair it is—costing five thousand dollars. I saw a number of treaties arranged in a glass case, but cannot pretend to give a catalogue of them at this time; also examined the Ghent Treaty, signed by the (then) Prince Regent; it was cased in a splendid green morocco port folio—with a large seal (in a box as big as a bloody big shaving box.) attached to it—and a device, (originally) in wax, of St George and the Dragon; but they had all melted, like the wings of Icarus, by the charm of caloric—and St George and the Dragon were neither here, nor there! I saw the original Declaration of Independence, and the Commission of Washington. Who can behold these, without a thrill of national pride! without a glow of patriotism! without a feeling of awe and veneration!

The House, I understand, were occupied by [illegible] on the Deposits to-ties, I observed in the Senate, listening to Mr Shepley. He has made the most clear, logical, and forcible argument on the Deposit subject that has been given this Session. It will require a shrewder logician than any who has yet spoken on the opposition side, to answer him. He has clearly demonstrated the duty of the Executive to see that the laws are executed—and as clearly shown that the Bank Charter gives the Bank no control over, and no right to, the Deposits—but on the other hand, is required and bound to grant "facilities" for transferring and removing them.

I shall not pretend to give any outline of the speech—for to do it justice, I should have to give the whole speech, and nothing but the Speech The opposition affect to sneer a little at it—but this arises simply from the speaker's manner, which is not graceful, though forcible and emphatic. Yet they cannot help laughing approbation to his home thrusts. Who will answer him? No one will be able to refute his arguments—but they will endeavor to ridicule him, and some of his peculiarities. I heard an opposition gentleman remark, that he was the ablest administration man in the Senate. I know not how the others may approve of this—but I am well satisfied the ablest of them will feel a pride in showing their approbation, rather than in indulging in any envy on the subject.

REIS EFFENDI.

It is now nearly four months since the public deposites were removed. During that time, the United States Bank has exercised all its power to spread alarm among the mercantile part of the community, and has used its utmost strength to distress the money market in New York, Philadelphia and Boston. It has thrown the payment of more than ten millions of dollars of drafts on to those cities, since August last; and yet this call, besides those resulting from an extensive business—our trading to a vast amount—and the curtailment of at least eight millions of dollars of Government credits, by the new Tariff law, has been met promptly, and without much difficulty.—We have had in this city but few failures, as we are informed, since the first of October, the aggregate of whose debts is about $750,000, and whose assets will pay probably $500,000. Several of these persons were more or less embarrassed before the removal of the deposites, and might not have been able, perhaps, to maintain their credits long, even if this pressure had not occurred.

Advices from Para to the 24th ult. have been received at Salem. The new authorities had arrived there from Rio Janeiro, and taken their situations, without any disturbance. The copper law was to go into immediate effect; paper currency to be substituted, and no copper to circulate excepting that of legal weight.

Port au Prince.—A law was to take effect 1st inst. forbidding foreign vessels trading from one port to another, in the island, obliging them to discharge and load where they first arrive. Its object is to turn the attention of the planters to raising coffee and break up the mahogany trade.

☞ We are compelled to omit, for want of room, a critique on Mr F. S. Hill's "Six Degrees of Crime."

MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE.

Monday, Jan. 20—In the Senate, it was ordered, in concurrence, that the committee on Railroads and Canals inquire into the expediency of farther provision for damages sustained by owners of real estate, taken by R. R. Corporations. Last year's petitions on the subject of broad-rimmed wheels, and of a bounty on their use, were taken from the files, committed, sent down, and returned concurred

In the House, Bills to incorporate the Fuller Academy—to increase the capital stock of the Roxbury India Rubber Factory—to incorporate the Boston Chemical Printing Company, to increase the capital of the Boston and Lowell Railroad Corporation, severally passed to be engrossed—Bills, in addition to regulate Pilotage in Boston Harbor—and to increase the capital of the Globe Fire and Marine Insurance Office, passed to a third reading. A Resolve, presented by Mr Austin, of Charlestown, with a preamble, declaring the total failure of the penitentiary system, as a means of preventing crime, and declaring the expediency of petitioning Congress to negotiate for lands in the South Sea, or elsewhere, as a suitable place for the transportation of convicts, was adopted and referred to a special committee. The order of Mr White, of Boston, offered on Saturday, on the subject of Banks and Banking, was taken up and adopted.

ERRORS EXCEPTED.

[From the Boston Courier.]

"Malice afore thought." "Cotton Goods.—The Spy at Washington, writing to the New York Courier and Enquirer, states that it is believed at Washington that the construction put upon the tariff on Cottons by Mr Taney, is the result of calculation, because legislation is inconvenient to the powers that be. And that the object was to distract the Southern and Eastern Senators who are acting against the administration, and to create dissensions between them. He thinks, however, that an explanatory act will be immediately passed to alleviate all trouble on the subject.

It is the settled opinion among the merchants, mechanics and manufacturers, that the first movements against the National Bank, from which most of our embarrassments have sprung, originated in this city, in the hearts and heads of men who seem to have the principles and the feelings of DEMONS."

It will be seen that the above attack on Mr Taney, than whom a purer, better and more patriotic man does not exist, is entirely gratuitous—Mr Taney has given no construction of the tariff, except to correct the wrong one put upon it by the comptroller in consequence of misapprehending the decision of Mr McLane.

Secondly—"The merchants, mechanics and manufacturers" who imbibe their ideas and information from the Boston Courier and its kindred prints, have many "settled opinions" that are quite erroneous. The first movement against the United States Bank, was by P. P. Barbour, in Congress, during Mr Adams' administration, in moving to sell the Government stock in that institution. The next was by Gen. Jackson—but whoever originated it, so far from being branded with the epithet of "Demons," deserve the commendation of the country, and when the storm shall have passed, and the Bank quietly buried in the [illegible] of oblivion, people will look back [illegible] its advocates.

For the Boston Morning Post.

To the President and Directors of the Branch Bank in Boston:

Gentlemen,—It appears by the late speech of Mr Binney, in Congress, that while the loans from the Parent Bank have been actually enlarged, much to the accommodation of the favored city of Philadelphia, those of Boston have been most disproportionately reduced. His statement is as follows:—

In October, 1833, the Philadelphians had	$7,156,487
In January, 1834,	7,979,233
Increase, during the pressure,	822,746

For the same period, the Boston loans were:—

In October, 1833,	$3,965,283
In January, 1834,	2,316,034
Reduction (!) during the pressure,	$1,649,249

Thus the accommodations to the business of Philadelphia, make about one half the amount abstracted from Boston.

I beg leave respectfully to inquire, whether this enormous reduction in Boston was made by orders of the Parent Bank; or whether the Branches have any discretion of their own in the management of their loans.

KILBY STREET.

How to kill two birds with one stone.—Whereas, it is at all times needful that a proper spirit of order, and a due sense of respect, on the part of the people towards their public servants, should be cherished:—and whereas, it is by no means desirable to retire from office without some suitable acknowledgement of my public worth, and of the regret of my fellow citizens at parting with so invaluable a ruler:—therefore Ordered—That a salute of twenty-four guns be fired to induct my successor into office, and that all the people fall a-crying.

POLICE COURT.

Robert Porter, a young chap, whose personal equipment was on the vagabond order, was seen to pop his head out of the back door of Whitney & Blake's store, on Central wharf, on Sunday evening. He stated to the watchman, that he got into the store on Saturday afternoon, and being a little high, had fallen asleep on a bale of cotton, and that when he awoke, he found the store locked, and so he went to sleep again, and amused himself during the Sunday by napping and waking alternately. He is probably a somnambulist, for during these naps, he opened every drawer and desk in the store,—but did not find anything in them to tempt his organ of acquisitiveness. This was very lucky for him, as it is likely that his organ of justice was asleep. He, however, exchanged his old shoes for a pair of the clerk's boots, with which he marched into court. This being an original case, Porter was committed to stand his trial, by a jury, who, if they happen to be wide awake, may put a stopper to his getting high for a month or so.

Eben Winslow and Samuel Stetson—whose characters were a sufficient passport to the honors of the Police Court—were charged by an officer with stealing a cloak, valued at $7. They had the cloak in a bag offering it for sale, for $1.50, and said they had picked it up in Tremont street. There being no proof to the contrary, they were discharged, and manifested their innocence by an expeditious exit, leaving the cloak and bag to take care of themselves. It is a dark green plaid, lined with bocking, and fur collar, and the owner can have it by calling on Veteran Reid.

William Bulfinch was charged with stealing a drab Petersham box coat, valued at $32, from Rufus O. Sevrence, from the entrance of a boarding house in Charles street. As soon as the coat was missed, notice was given to the sable fraternity of old clothes dealers. Bulfinch offered the coat to Henry Tyler, where he stated that he had been to the South since he bought it, and as he had grown fleshy on the voyage, the coat was too small for him, and he was willing to sell it for $4. Tyler stepped out to get some change, and returned with tip-staff, and 'Squire Bulfinch was marched off. He stated in defence that a colored man agreed to give him $1 commission for selling it. It was probably a partnership transaction, and poor William will have to answer all demands against the firm.

A Scene.—Quite a decent looking young man was arraigned for being a dangerous and disorderly person. It appeared that he had drank a glass of brandy on Sunday evening, and afterwards entered the passage of a respectable boarding house, where he prepared himself for pleasant dreams, and could only be ejected by main force; he gave battle to a friend who tried to get him home, and was finally taken into safe keeping by the watch. He colored deeply when the complaint was read to him, but when called upon by his friend [illegible] was carried out of the court. As soon [illegible] he had revived, he was brought in again, and discharged, upon giving small bonds to keep the peace. He is subject to a determination of blood to the head, and a small portion of ardent renders him insane.

MUNICIPAL COURT.

[Abridged from the Atlas of Thursday.]

Commonwealth vs. Noah James and Elbridge G. Bodwell.—George C. Thompson, deputy Warden of the New Hampshire State Prison, endorsed a note for $600, for James. This note was protested, and Thompson had to pay it. He then trusteed some funds belonging to James, in the hands of Mr Lincoln, Warden of the State Prison. This exasperated James, and he procured Bodwell to accompany him in a chaise, to Thompson's house, in Charles street, to be a witness of what should take place. James got out, with a large cowhide in his right hand, which he concealed by keeping behind him. He knocked violently at the door, and when Thompson came out, asked him what he meant by trusteeing his property, and insisted upon his taking the attachment off immediately. His language was very abusive. Thompson courteously but firmly refused to relinquish his security. James then pulled him down the steps on to the sidewalk and commenced striking him with a cowhide, saying at the same time—"If you will not take off the writ, take that, you ——— rascal." Thompson's mother attempted to get between them as they were struggling on the side-walk, whereupon Bodwell jumped out of the chaise, threw her violently into the street, and held Thompson's hands while James struck him with his fists, Thompson having succeeded in wresting the cowhide from him. Two disinterested witnesses, who saw the whole affair from a window opposite, confirmed this statement.

James and Bodwell were both found guilty; and James was sentenced to pay a fine of $30 and costs, and to give bonds in $200 to keep the peace for 1 year. Bodwell was fined $10.

Melancholy Accident.—Mr Isaiah Winslow, a respectable citizen of Westbrook, was drowned yesterday in Presumpscut river, by breaking through the ice while skating. His body was found this morning a few rods from the place where he fell through.—Portland Cour.

CONGRESS.

Thursday, Jan. 16.—IN THE SENATE, Mr King of Ala. presented a memorial from the legislature of that State, relating to the pre-emption rights of settlers upon the public lands, and praying that the price of refuse lands be reduced so as to come within the means of purchase of the poorer classes of the community, which was referred and ordered to be printed.

On motion of Mr Shepley, the Secretary of the Treasury was directed to communicate to the Senate, the tonnage departing from the United States to the British North American colonies, and to the British West Indies, since the 30th September, 1832, distinguishing the domestic and foreign tonnage, and also, the value of the exports to those places during the same period.

The Senate resumed the consideration of Mr Clay's resolutions upon the removal of the deposites. When Mr Shepley had resumed and concluded his speech, Mr Rives took the floor and moved an adjournment. He withdrew the motion, however, at the suggestion of Mr Webster—and the Senate then, on his motion, went into the consideration of Executive business. After some time spent therein, the Senate adjourned.

IN THE HOUSE, a message was received from the President, transmitting the annual report of the directors of the mint.

Mr Chilton's resolution for extending the general Pension Law, as to embrace within its provisions, those persons who were engaged in the Indian wars down to 1794, with the amendment thereto, to appoint a committee to inquire into the moral effects of the pension system—coming up as the unfinished business—a debate ensued, which was cut short by the arrival of the hour of one.

The House then resumed the consideration of the motion to refer the Report of the Secretary of the Treasury on the Deposites to the Committee of Ways and Means. The question being on Mr McDuffie's amendment. Mr Beardsley addressed the House until 4 o'clock, when Mr Seaborn Jones, having obtained the floor, moved an adjournment.

"Louisa and Maria Chinnery, daughters of the late Sir G. Chinnery by his second marriage with (Alice Boyle) Lady Shinnery, who died last October, are declared of unsound mind. Their brother, Richard Boyle Chinnery, is likewise insane. The provisions for those females is £7,000 each. The body of their deceased mother has been closed up in a leaden coffin, and remains in their house in Dublin since the first of last month, the daughters having outrageously scouted every effort to inter her remains. Both young ladies were fondly attached to each other, and highly accomplished, previous to the dreadful malady which now deranges their intellect."—Limerick Chronicle.

A letter from Marseilles, dated Nov. 10th, says:—Our city for some days has been a scene of assassinations—no less than nine having taken place in the last four days—all on account of political causes. They are committed in the open streets, and are generally attributed to the Carlist party, who are numerous here, and highly excited. Several persons have been arrested, all of whom are of that party. Some of them had poinards and stillettos in their possession when arrested."

PATENT FOR THE U. STATES.—Mott's Patent Medicated and Champoo Baths, and Systematic Vegetable Medicine. These Baths are well known to the medical faculty as being patronised by the most eminent Physicians of Europe and Asia, and are considered in the Oriental Empires as the greatest luxury they enjoy, being a preventive as well as a cure of contagious diseases—and they are now introduced in the United States in a new and perfect form and with the greatest confidence of success. These Baths are [illegible] to the disease—they are now open to the public, and will be administered to families or individuals, under the direction, or according to the prescription of their physician.

Dr Mott will undertake the cure (or the relief) of all Chronic Diseases, Wounds, (however of long standing) Ulcers, Abscesses, internal or external, Gout, Rheumatism, Tic Doloroux, Cancers, Impositumes, and other complaints incident to the human frame.

Dr M. will personally superintend the various Baths, and attend to the prescriptions of the Medical Gentlemen in behalf of their patients.

Without boasting of the cures that have been performed, or pretending to any wonderful knowledge, he would merely say, he would be happy to render the Baths, and the system of Medicine itself, useful to the high Medical Talent of Boston, leaving it to an enlightened public to decide.

Those spacious premises have been fitted up with great expense, at the corner of Lynde and Cambridge streets, and other places have been purchased to be fitted up as auxiliary establishments. It may be proper to state, that no mercury or mineral preparations are used—no hot medicines, or cold water—but it is, in fact, a union of the simples of the Materia Medica with the Herbal Medica—therefore called Vegetable.

Teeth and Corns, he will undertake to extract scientifically; Bunions on the joints, compound or cancerous Toe Nails, and other diseases of the Feet, diseases of the Eyes, &c.

Male Patients only attended to by me. Mrs Mott, the Females and Children. No out door cases can be attended to.

N. B. Agents may purchase Patent Rights for villages, towns, or cities, in any part of the United States, with a guarantee exclusive—together with the Medicines and Book of Directions, by application to DR MOTT, corner of Lynde and Cambridge streets. jan 21 tf

BOSTON TRUSS MANUFACTORY.—J. F. FOSTER, Agent.—The subscriber having mostly relinquished his former business, will now attend to the business of making, fitting, and repairing Trusses. After having tested Trusses of his own make for fifteen years past, and during that time has been employed in making and fitting Trusses for various individuals, which have proved very efficient in most cases, especially where they have strictly followed his directions, and now offers his services to those who stand in need of the article in confidence of giving entire satisfaction to those who may please to call on him, as he will attend to them personally.

Among the variety of Trusses made and sold by J. F. Foster, are Patent Elastic Spring Trusses, with Spring Pads, Trusses without steel springs. These give relief in all cases of rupture, and in a large portion produce a perfect cure. They can be worn day and night Improved Hinge and Pivot Trusses—Umbilical Spring Trusses, and Trusses with ball and socket joints. In addition to the above, the Subscriber manufactures a Double Joint Truss which has never been offered to the public till lately and made by himself, but was first invented by a gentleman of Rhode Island, for his own personal use, and has proved the same twenty years to be the best now in use for most cases of rupture.

All sorts of repairing and covering Trusses promptly attended to in a most faithful manner, and as low as can be done elsewhere. Low priced Trusses kept constantly on hand for those who are too poor to pay for an expensive Truss. All of the above will be warranted to the purchaser.

The Subscriber is also agent for other Truss makers, and will keep all the American approved kinds on hand. Place of business, 388 Washington street, up stairs, directly opposite Boylston Market, name on the door of a seperate and private apartment. 1y—jan21

Recommendations.

Mr S. C. Hare having examined Grosvenor's System of Stenography, gives his unqualified approbation to the invention, and wishes it most cordially success.

RICHARDSON & HARE,
Boston Stenographic and Laurinian Academy, 25 Joy's Buildings. Dec 15, 1834.

(From the Reporter of the Morning Post.)

I have examined and made some experiments with "Grosvenor's Stenography made easy," and find it to be exceedingly simple in design, and expeditious in practice. THOMAS GILL, Jr.

I have given Mr S. D. Grosvenor's new system of Stenography, a slight examination, and think the transverse principle which he has adopted, to be a decided improvement. W. DRAPER.
Teacher in Towndrow's Academy.

Persons purchasing the book, can receive instructions on application to Mr Draper.

KNAPP'S BLACKING.

LIQUID, Paste, and Sponge—also a leather preservative, comprising all the kinds now in use, are manufactured and for sale at the Blacking Establishment, head of the Western Avenue.

KNAPP'S JAPAN LIQUID BLACKING, three sizes, in stone jugs. The proprietor has the pleasure to inform the public that from long experience in the business, he has been able to make great improvements in the article, so much so, it is believed, no other kind approaches near it in quality, with the exception of Day & Martin's, which by many is not considered so good. A small quantity, made expressly for retailing, now on hand, and offered to the public on reasonable terms—warranted to give the most entire satisfaction. The smallest orders gratefully received.

KNAPP'S CONDENSED OIL PASTE BLACKING is offered as above, by the single box, dozen, or cask. This article is pronounced by the most competent and disinterested judges to be superior to any other kind now known in this market; and warranted to give satisfaction, or money refunded to the purchaser. It is prepared with oil, and its shining qualities are believed to be unequalled. It will be sold on liberal terms, and to wholesale dealers in the article, the discount will be satisfactory.

KNAPP'S JAPAN SPONGE BLACKING, for sale as above, by the barrel, gallon, or dozen. It is sufficient to say of this article, it sustains the highest reputation of any article of the kind manufactured in this part of the country, and it is the intention of the manufacturer to spare no pains or expense in the preparation of the same.

KNAPP'S LEATHER PRESERVATIVE, for sale as above, (indispensable to every man who regards his health or economy.) First, it renders the leather impervious to water, also makes it soft and pliable, and of course prevents it from cracking, which is the first symptoms of decay in leather. It is believed that one pair of boots with this article applied properly, will wear as long as two with nothing of the kind used on them; and for the preservation of leather, should be used in summer as well as winter. july 22

BROWN'S SELF-INJECTING INDIA RUBBER INSTRUMENT.

BY which removes costiveness and many of its consequent complaints, by the use of warm water only. The instrument is put up in a small pocket book, which may be carried in the vest pocket. It is so simple and portable an article, that its use is decidedly more pleasant than most of the instruments now in use; it has no piston or valve, or any of the complicated contrivance which causes the common instrument to get out of repair. It may be used by any person alone with the greatest ease, and it can be administered to patients lying in bed without turning them over or exposing them in the slighest degree. In this respect it has a decided advantage over all other instruments, as it does also in convenience, portability, and cheapness. Price $2 50. Please to observe the signature of the proprietor, William Brown, written with indelible ink on the inside of the India rubber cloth.

CERTIFICATES.

Having employed Mr William Brown's Self-Injecting India Rubber Apparatus, both in private practice and in the Massachusetts General Hospital, I can recommend it as well calculated to answer the purpose for which it is intended; while it is at least as effectual as the common instruments now in use, it possesses the advantages of being in a more portable form, of a more simple construction, and consequently more easily kept in order, and of being afforded at a much less price.

GEORGE HAYWARD,
Jun. Surg. of the Mass. Gen. Hospital.
April 15th, 1833.

I concur in the opinion expressed above by Dr Hayward. JOHN WARE.

U. S. Marine Hospital, April 18th, 1833.

Mr Brown—The domestic instrument I received of you, I find upon a thorough trial to answer the expectations I had previously formed of it. Its simplicity of construction, its portableness, its being free from the liability to injury, and above all, the ease with which lavements may be administered by its means, have induced me to employ the instrument in this institution to the exclusion of all others formerly in use.

C. H. STEDMAN,
Phys. and Surg. U. S. M. H.

The following Physicians hereby certify that we have in our practice, used Wm. Brown's Self-Injecting India Rubber instrument, and find it as simple, commodious and effectual an article of the kind as we have ever known; we have, therefore, no hesitation in pronouncing it to be a valuable instrument, and recommend it for general use:—

Marshall S. Perry, John D. Fisher, Samuel G. Howe, John Homans, J. G. Stevenson, Joshua B. Flint, Boston; Charles M. Windship, Roxbury.

PURE BEAR'S OIL may be had by the grocery dozen, or single bottle, of A. BOYDEN, Hancock street.

As in all cases, so especially in this, Venders, if they wish to secure the patronage of the public, should be extremely cautious not to sell an article for the Hair which tends to counteract rather than to assist nature.

The virtues of Bear's Oil have been too long tested to need any eulogium; and at this time, no one can doubt of its being the very best article for strengthening and promoting the growth of the Hair. An honest prejudice against the use of Bear's Oil has long existed, arising from two causes—the improper method of purifying it, and the imposition upon the public of a spurious article. That this prejudice may be wholly removed, this article now offered is warranted the pure Oil, rendered more pleasant by the addition of a little Perfume—and the possibility of its injuring the Hair is entirely precluded by the manner in which it has been purified. To prevent fraud, the genuine is enclosed in two wrappers, the inside one being signed Arnold Boyden. aug 15
